

Backend consists of server and databases and application

Server will serve up my html css files, database will store my data and application where you create your business logic

Think of a restaurant the dining area would be front end the kitchen will be server as it is from where the dishes are served on and fridge will be database where the ingredients are stored the made dish would be application